Mike Guy

Production Manager – Seed

Mike joined the Plug Connection team early in 1993 just as the company was taking shape, and 18 years later, he has never had a dull moment. He and his team are constantly adapting to the changing industry, new crops and improved systems. Mike's goal is to consistently produce the best quality plugs, and he treats every day as an opportunity to improve. Outside of work, Mike stays busy helping run the production nursery that he and his wife Julie founded after he received his BS in Ornamental Horticulture from Cal Poly, Pomona in 1977. He enjoys the outdoors, time at the beach and nurses a serious fishing addiction.

Gregg Opgenorth

Production Manager – Vegetative

Gregg's broad range of production experience, from bedding plants and nursery stock to conventional ornamentals and organic herbs and vegetables, gives him insight into the challenges that growers face on a daily basis. As head vegetative grower and as part of the product development team, Gregg's focus is on delivering high-quality plugs, liners and programs that are ready to be installed into both large and small production systems. He is always available to share his production and cultural expertise with customers. Gregg and his wife Linda – recent empty nesters – grow many of our plants in their own Fallbrook, California garden.

ORGANIKS®: A RETAIL SOLUTION THAT INCREASES PROFITABILITY

Organiks® is your connection to the future of growing. Organic food is more than just a fad – it's a lasting shift in consumer attitudes and behaviors, as the next generation of urban, suburban and rural consumers embraces a new outlook on what and how they eat.

Young consumers want food that's safe, healthy and socially responsible. They perk up at the phrase "locally grown" and are willing to pay more – or go farther – to get food that meets their standards. They value the experience of growing plants, whether they're doing it directly or supporting those who do so in a sustainable way. Home grown trumps the farmers market every time.

This movement is powerful and tangible. Organic food is the fastest growing segment of the gardening industry. The value of the organic market reached $29 billion in 2010, continuing to outpace the conventionally grown market even during a recession. Organic isn't the next big thing; it's the big thing – and Organiks is your easy way in.

Organiks is the first national brand of herbs and vegetables, and it's your entrypoint to garden centers, high-end grocery stores and eager consumers. We provide you with a retail-ready system, complete with interactive consumer and trade websites, marketing concepts and easy-to-understand, appealing packaging. Organiks is ready to plug into any production system, and Plug Connection can even help growers get certified by the USDA.

Whole Foods wants more organic growers. Garden centers want more organic growers. Consumers are clamoring for more organic food. This is your opportunity. Organiks is here to help you capitalize on it.

The US organic industry was valued at almost $29 billion in 2010, with growth of nearly 8% over the previous year.*

"The Organiks Program is both timely and relevant to our consumers' demands. It has increased sales with our existing customers and helped us to gain new ones."

—Heather Hydoski | Production Manager | Armstrong Growers | Glendora, CA

Experiencing the most growth were organic fruits and vegetables, representing 39.7% of total organic food value and nearly 12% of all US fruit and vegetable sales, up 11.8% over 2009.*

ORGANIKS IN THE WEST

With over 100 acres of production space in three different locations and 31 retail stores, Armstrong Gardens is the largest independent retail nursery company in the United States. Plug Connection's support and expertise in establishing Armstrong's herb and vegetable production system to USDA Certified Organic standards was invaluable. And with Organiks on sale at Whole Foods® and other high-end natural food stores, the brand is gaining momentum and sales are increasing strongly.

ORGANIKS IN THE SOUTHEAST

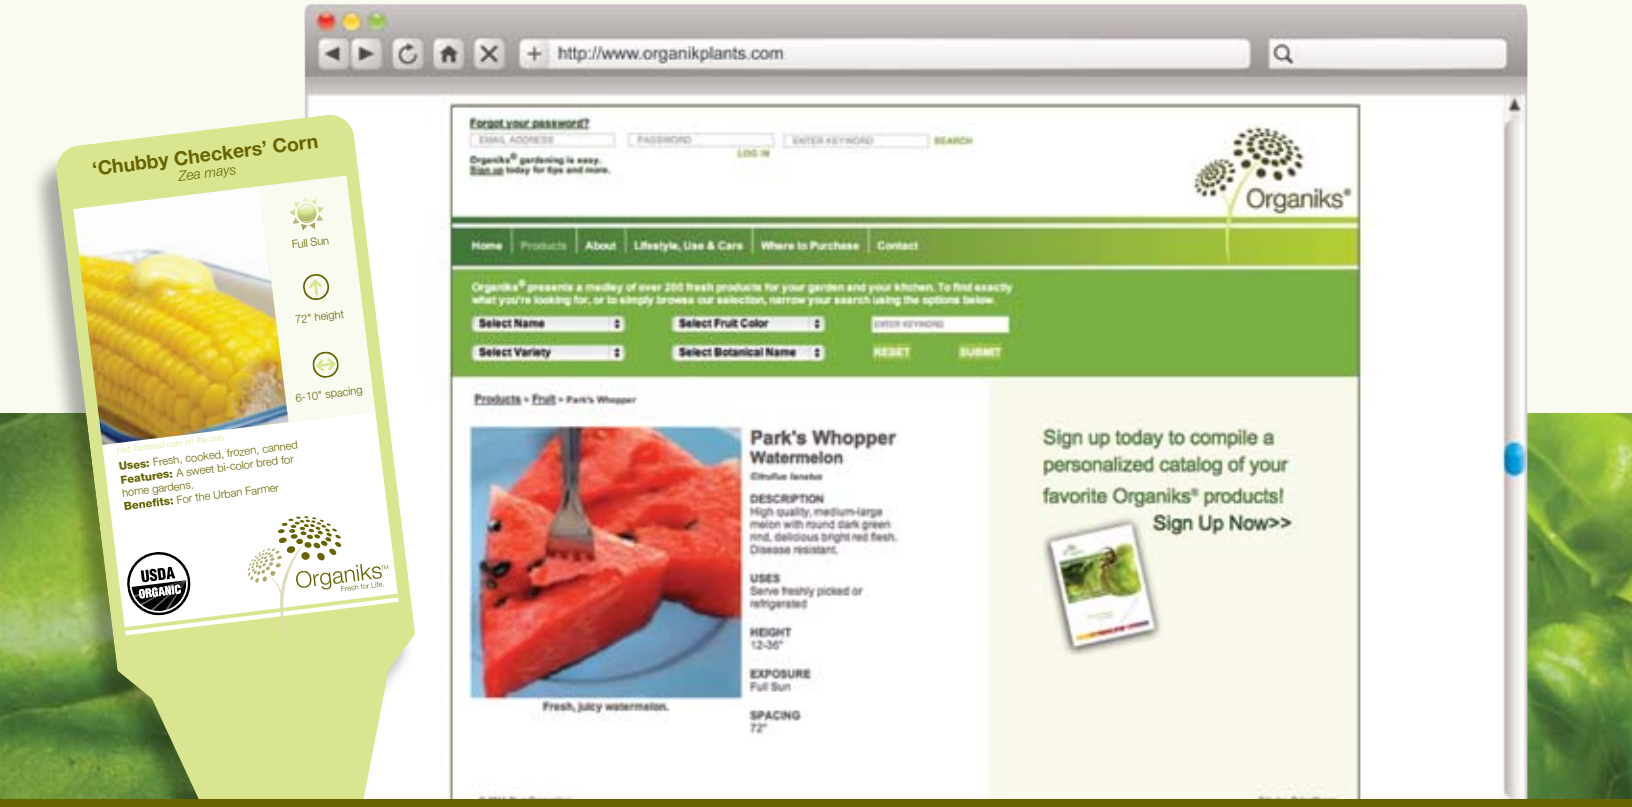
Sunbelt Greenhouses in Douglas, Georgia has done an excellent job developing the Organiks program together with Pike Nurseries. With 20 acres of production and strong relationships with more than 85 garden centers, they have been pleased with the growth in sales and interest from both garden centers and consumers. The program has been a hit at Pike Nurseries stores in the metro Atlanta region and has increased sales substantially over the last two years.

"The Organiks® Program has been the most successful branded plant program we have been involved with. It was easy to adopt on both the production and retail side, and with the packaging and marketing support it's been a huge success at retail with strong growth each season."

–James Russell | Vice President | Armstrong Growers | Glendora, CA

"The Organiks program has enabled us to maximize growth in our vegetable and herb category. Sales have increased 40% each of the last two years. Growth like this in a slow economy is fantastic."

–Ian Hydoski | Vice President of Retail Operations | Armstrong Garden Centers | Glendora, CA



"We wanted our own label for certified organic herbs and vegetable finished plant products for retail presentation. The Organiks® brand has the contemporary lifestyle look we want and much more. Why reinvent the wheel? A label with the look we needed, our investment protected by regional exclusivity and the Organiks® website to provide the support gardeners need to be a successful with the plants. Our retail buyers like the clean, fresh lifestyle-oriented tags and tray talkers. This partnership has been a win-win for us all."

–Cathy Wilson | General Manager | Flora Company

"Using the custom Organiks® Brand tags made my life so much easier. One tag had all the information necessary to satisfy the Weights and Measures Department, our Organic Certification agent and our garden center customers, too. Pots are tagged on the production line so the flat goes to the growing floor finished. I like the look on the floor and it's impressive when we take buyers through the organic houses. The Tray Talker is added to the flats on the shipping racks so our Organiks® product looks really nice going into the retail store."

–Greg Vanhoozer | Production/Shipping Manager | Flora Company

"I started developing an in-house custom branding project for our organic program. Working with tag companies was not getting me what we needed and I was getting frustrated. I saw the Organiks® brand information in Plug Connection's catalog and thought, 'This is it!' Plug Connection's staff worked closely with us to make sure we had everything we needed to make it all work."

–Carly Giedl | Sales/Customer Service | Flora Company

SUN-DRIED, AND OH SO SWEET

Offer your customers the opportunity to capture the romance of Southern Italy by growing their very own sun-dried tomatoes. Enjoy their unique, sweet taste fresh from the vine or dried in the oven. This is a new, versatile category of tomato that breaks through the clutter. Tomaccio™ is a great end-cap variety and effectively captures summer sales in larger containers. Easy to grow in pots or in the ground, its versatility opens more seasonal markets and creates additional opportunities for consumer satisfaction. Growers and retailers can expect higher margins with Tomaccio.

Sun-dried or fresh off the vine, Tomaccio is a tomato comfortable in its own skin. But, it's what's on the inside that counts – a taste so uniquely sweet, they won't be saying tomato, they'll be saying Tomaccio.

A specialty category unlike anything on the market, Tomaccio tomatoes have an intense, sugary flavor when picked fresh or dried at home. Tomato aficionados love them as a sweet snack or a gourmet ingredient in pastas, pizzas and salads – and happily pay more.

Arriving in America and backed by a consumer marketing wave, Tomaccio offers a high-margin product that's great as an end-cap variety and captures summer sales.

SUPERNATURALS' POWER

With high-voltage growth in vegetable sales, we're searching for new and innovative ways to bring profitable programs to our customers. One of our latest quests: battling the rise of destructive diseases.

Storm clouds have recently appeared on the horizon in the form of soil-borne diseases that are devastating tomato crops in gardens across the country and are trying to dim the future of home vegetable gardening. Our new line of SuperNaturals™ Grafted Vegetables gives growers and retailers a Super-Powered program to fight back against the looming danger of soil-borne diseases and make sure that the future of vegetables stays sunny.

SUPER NATURALS™
Grafted Vegetables, LLC

STRONG HISTORY OF SUPERNATURAL GROWTH

Grafted vegetables were introduced in Korea and Japan at the end of the 1920s but have since spread throughout Asia and Europe. Mainly used for intensive cropping systems like greenhouse and field production, the numbers are now staggering, with more than 1 billion grafted vegetables grown in Asia alone.

The practice of vegetable grafting is now expanding around the world. Grafted tomato production in Spain went from fewer than 1 million plants in 2000 to over 45 million plants in 2004, and over 20 million tomato plants were grafted in Morocco in 2004.

The SuperNaturals line of Mighty 'Mato will be joined by grafted Peppers, Eggplant, Squash, Cucumbers and Melons, so check our website for the most up-to-date list of varieties at

THE SECRET SUPER POWER

Grafted veggies are created when the top part of one plant (the scion) is attached to the root system of a separate plant (the rootstock). When their tissues heal, they fuse into one SuperPlant with the best qualities of each; the rootstock contributes vigor and disease resistance while the scion is chosen for fruit flavor or quality. The resulting plant is more vigorous and healthy with greater productivity.

BAMBUSA MULTIPLEX 10-20' Hardiness Zone: 8b-11 Habit: Tight Clumping

This sub-tropical clumper is known for its durability and structure. With an upright habit that lends itself to container plantings, it is very tolerant of both indoor and outdoor conditions. Use in containers on patios and decks and in colder climates. Protect from wind and excess cold.

BAMBUSA OLDHAMII Over 50' Hardiness Zone: 9a-11 Habit: Clumping

Uses: Specimen, Screen, Hedge, Windbreak

Reaching heights of over 50' with canes from 2-4" in diameter, this clumping bamboo is one of the most impressive to behold. With a very upright habit and large masses of emerald-green leaves held on compact branches, it's well-suited to hotter areas of the US. New canes emerge with a blue-grey covering and mature to a deep-forest green color.

CHUSQUEA GIGANTEA Over 20' Hardiness Zone: 7a-11 Habit: Open Clumping

Uses: Specimen, Hedge, Screen, Container, Pole Production

A superb, hardy, clumping form that has long been grown in the UK but is still relatively new to the US. Mature plants look like giant feather plumes, and with their upright canes that are gently weeping at the top, they are a very elegant choice for the garden. Unlike other bamboo varieties, these canes are solid wood. Native to southern Chile, this plant makes a perfect specimen or hedge in the garden.

TRAY SIZE: 32/32
MINIMUM: 1 box/2 trays
OFFERED: Year round

FARGESIA DRACOCEPHALA Under 10' Hardiness Zone: 5a-11 Habit: Tight Clumping

'Rufa' Uses: Specimen, Container, Screen

Originating from the Sichuan Province of China, this hardy bamboo has beautiful, orange-red culm sheaths that add a glow and warmth to the landscape. This new clumping selection is perfect for smaller gardens and spaces. Shoot production is prolific, making this a great retail plant.

FARGESIA SP. 10-20' Hardiness Zone: 6a-11 Habit: Tight Clumping

'Scabrida' Uses: Specimen, Screen, Hedge

Collected in the North Sichuan Province of China in the late '90s and sent to the Netherlands, this variety soon began to develop a following. With average canes ¾" in diameter and prolific shooting periods, the variety was perfect for nursery production. Culm sheaths have a wonderful, red-orange color that is set off against the dark green of the emerging canes. With long, elegant leaves, the plant has a more open and light appearance. Since it's relatively new, no final determinations have been made about mature height, but a clump in the Netherlands reached 14' in just 3 years.

PHYLOSTACHYS NIGRA Over 20' Hardiness Zone: 7a-11 Habit: Running

'Black Bamboo' Uses: Specimen, Screen, Container, Windbreak, Bank Stabilization, Erosion Control

The combination of graceful foliage and dramatic cane coloration makes this an excellent choice for a range of uses. A premium product at retail – our plants from TC present a much more attractive pot than production by division.

Kia Ora Flora captures the brilliant spirit of New Zealand and shares it with the world – after all, "kia ora" itself is a popular greeting that wishes good health and fortune in New Zealand's native language.

KIA ORA FLORA®

One look at their shiny smooth evergreen foliage and you'll know why New Zealanders call them Mirror Plants. In fact, many varieties resemble a multicolored boxwood plant. Among the most textural and versatile plants around, there's a Coprosma habit and color for every taste – and every part of the garden or landscape. Coprosma foliage colors also darken and intensify in cool weather. Easy, fast-growing and deer-resistant, these rugged beauties do best in fertile, well-drained soil. Outstanding plants for the tropical garden and among the easiest for bonsai and container use.

The uniform, consistent habit of the Cocktail Series make these three varieties the perfect choice for 4' to 6' pot production. Excellent in mixed containers or as specimens, they command a premium at retail with their unusual color and texture with a tidy habit. Cool night temperatures enhance foliage colors.

For more marketing tools you can expect as a Plug Connection partner, visit www.plugconnection.com/resources.html

seasonal product availability

Our goal is to develop programs filled with products that are profitable for our customers and easy to adopt. Many of our products are available during a limited season – we work with many of the best mother stock suppliers in the industry to assure that we receive the highest quality cuttings. We have listed peak ship weeks as a guide to the time when our stock supply is best. However, if your production needs demand product outside our listed seasons, please don't hesitate to call or email our customer service department and discuss your production needs, and we will attempt to facilitate a product availability that works for you. We're always looking for new products and programs that will help our customers grow their business, so please give us every opportunity to make that happen.
